We at the Salvation Army are busy preparing for the 2009 holiday season and with unemployment still an issue, gas prices beginning to rise again, we know the needs are going to be great. We are once again coming to the community to ask for help to make this Christmas a little brighter for those who are in need. Listed below are the programs we provide and are asking you to prayerfully

Over 200 Orrville Middle School 5th and 6th grade students participated in forming a giant 200 on the Orrville High School football field earlier this fall in anticipation of OrrViews 200th issue celebration. The '200' was designed by OHS Marching Band Director, Chris Jones. Sandy Troyer of the middle school, helped organize the students by classroom and several OrrViews volunteers along with middle school teachers helped to orchestrate the scene. Special thanks to all who made this photo possible!

200 deadlines and 200 deliveries later...

I have been asking myself what we should do to celebrate OrrViews 200th issue and how to get across to our readers, what is so significant about 200 issues?

Some might say it's no big deal since daily papers are printed every day. They come up with 200 issues in less than a year. However, OrrViews is very different because the Orrville community is responsible for generating the content for every issue. The very fact that OrrViews has been published 200 times is a wonderful confirmation to its ongoing popularity and success. On 200 different occasions over the past eight years, community members sat down at their computers and sent enough emails or handwritten stories, photos, and happenings to fill an average of 20 pages every two weeks, creating 200 very unique issues of OrrViews.

Through the efforts of Orrville and Wooster High School students that are part of the Ohio Cardinal Conference Leadership Group a service project was completed to assist our troops currently serving our country overseas. Orrville High School math tutor, Diana Simmons, came up with the information related to Operation Gridiron Airlift and USO Care Packages. She then passed it on to Keri Hamsher (her daughter) who is the athletic director of Wooster High School and to
